Canby Lodge Plans Work for the Coming Winter Season—District Meeting October 22.

The members of Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias, are planning to make this fall and winter one of the busiest seasons in the history of the lodge. Next Tuesday night degree work will be started with a class of ten candidates, which will be given the rank of page. On the following Tuesday night the same candidates will receive the rank of esquire so as to be ready to be made Knights at the annual district meeting, to take place here October 22.

Ten applications were received at a regular meeting of the lodge held in its hall on East Church street, Tuesday evening.

Besides the activity in degree work, there will be a series of socials arranged for the winter.

The district meeting, which will take place at the hall of Marion Lodge, No. 402, will be one of the largest ever held. It is expected that 500 visitors will be in the city.

At a meeting of Lane City Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held in its hall on West Center street Tuesday evening, an ice cream social was enjoyed at the expense of James Penock and other members of the lodge who were in a membership contest that closed recently. The winning side was captained by J. C. Brady.

Dr. C. J. Nichols, who was representative to the state meeting recently held at Tiffin, read his report. Marion made an excellent showing.

The degree staff of Kosciusko Lodge I. O. O. F. went to Caledonia Tuesday night where they conferred the second degree on one candidate and participated in a social conclave. The affair was held in the Caledonia I. O. O. F. hall and was attended by about two-hundred enthusiastic members of the order. Mayor Louis Scherff of this city was present and made an eloquent address, which was greatly appreciated. Following the degree work, refreshments were served and a general good social time was enjoyed.

The C. L. of O. met in the lodge hall with a large attendance last night. Aside from considering the regular business, arrangements were made for holding a social on Tuesday evening, October 8.

At a regular meeting held in its hall on North Main street, Tuesday evening, Sosnowski Rebekah lodge transacted considerable business of importance and enjoyed a social session.

The Druids Circle met last night and made arrangements for an ice cream social to be held in two weeks. The social will only be for the members of the lodge.

The Home Guards will meet in regular session this evening. A well attended meeting is desired.

DUMP WAGON CO. APPRAISERS REPORT

Place Value of Company's Property at $2,927.06.

Eighteen of the Wagons Sold But None Paid for—Valuable Assets in Patents.

The appraisers of the Long Dump Wagon company, which recently went into the hands of a receiver, yesterday filed their report in the court of common pleas. They are B. P. Sweney, Harry J. Mautz and H. R. Barnhart.

The appraisers report that their inventory and appraisal places the value of the company's property at $2,927.06. Eighteen of the wagons have been sold and none are paid for. Practically all are to be returned because of deficiencies and for that reason the appraisers made no estimate of their valuation.

The company has valuable assets in patents, the actual value of which is unknown.

PHYSICIANS ARE SIMPLY OUTCLASSED

Clark's Team Wins Volley Ball Championship.

Series of Interesting Games Played in the Y. M. C. A. Gym. Last Evening.

John Clark's aggregation of volleyball players, commonly known as the "has beans" showed up the physicians' team in the last game of a championship series of three sets, in the Association gym last night. In the two previous sets the "saw bones" broke even with Clark's aggregation but they couldn't quite retain their nerve last night and again Clark triumphed.

The games last night were played to decide the city championship honors. The doctors team composed of Lawson, Emery, Tilton and Brady thought that they had something on Clark's bunch. Clark didn't say much but when after the game in his famous professional manner and if the pill administrators had anything on him, it wasn't at all noticeable.

The physicians captured the first game in handy style by the score of 21 to 16. The second game, Clark reversed things and won 21 to 16. In the first part of the third game the physicians had 19 points to the good while Clark only scored 10. By brilliant playing however Clark's team soon tied the score and won the game and the series the score being 21 to 23.

CAPTAIN FUHR BECOMES AERONAUT THROUGH CHANCE

Crowd Awaiting Flight of the Large Airship When the "Yellow Wonder" Turns Yellow—Mr. Fuhr Prominent Business Man and Banker of Coshocton Comes to the Rescue and Pulls off a Successful Trip—Says He Thoroughly Enjoys the Sport of Aerial Navigation—Visited by Mirror Reporter.

A man who became operator of an airship purely through chance is Captain Frank Fuhr, who will make three ascensions at the county fair this week. Even though Fuhr has been engaged in his hazardous vocation all summer and has taken a great liking for it, he says that he does not expect to follow it permanently.

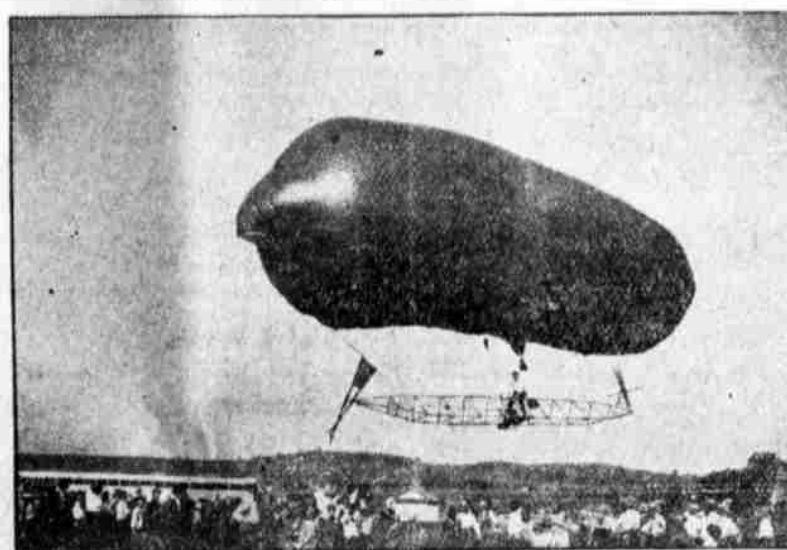

"As soon as the company can find another man who is able to operate the ship and who has the nerve to undertake it, I expect to return to my home in Coshocton and take up my business affairs," said Fuhr in talking with several reporters, Tuesday. Mr. Fuhr is a man who would be regarded in Marion as moderately wealthy. In Coshocton he has a real estate business and is president of a loan company and private bank. "I am just a plain citizen, no different from any one else," says Fuhr. "Some time ago the editor of a paper in the southern part of Ohio, a particular friend of mine, asked me to write a story of my life. I told him that I had no story. I was born on the farm and have always led the simple life, except, possibly, since I began traveling in airships."

When the reporters called at Mr. Fuhr's tent, Tuesday afternoon, they found the aeronaut at work on the useful?" asked one of the reporters. "I most certainly do," was the aeronaut's answer. "The day will come when this sort of travel will be common, but just how soon is hard to guess. When it does come, however, travel will not be made by means of ships carried by inflated bags, but by aeroplanes. Five years ago an airship was unknown in this country and even now the science is in its infancy."

The circumstances under which Mr. Fuhr became operator of an airship are unusual. It was at Coshocton, the place where the airship company has its quarters, that the incident occurred. The company had engaged "Legless" Wilson, the man who set the world afloat with his "jump the gap" act, to ride the ship. It was believed that the man who could perform such a daring feat on a bicycle, would be able to soar through the heavens without the least trepidation.

At the last minute, with thousands of people waiting to witness the first ascension, it was found that Wilson was too heavy and that furthermore, he lacked the requisite nerve. It was up to some one else to take the job and Fuhr, one of Coshocton's best known citizens, volunteered. He knew little about the mechanism but he jumped aboard and started on his neat little seven-horse power gasoline motor which furnishes power for operating the airship. The engine stands in the center of a triangular framework on which Mr. Fuhr is stationed while making his flights and must be in perfect running order so that there will not be the slightest possibility of a breakdown during an ascension.

The aeronaut stopped his work and for an hour or more talked with the newspaper men, explaining the mechanism of his ship and relating some of the innumerable interesting experiences which he has had since becoming an aerial navigator.

"Yes, I am frequently asked to describe the sensation which I experience while making a flight," said Mr. Fuhr in answer to a reporter's query. "I can only say that telling about it is really more difficult than making the flight, although possibly not as dangerous. I can say, however, that I have never had a feeling of fear—you don't have time for that. Your mind is entirely taken up with the operation of the machine and the thought of what might happen if something should go wrong never enters your mind."

"When you get at a certain altitude," continued Mr. Fuhr, "1,500 feet or higher, the motion of the ship is not apparent. It then seems as though the earth is moving under you."

"Do you think that travel in the air will ever become practicable and flight. After getting above the tree-tops he soon mastered the steering apparatus and had the machine under full control.

"I have never made a more successful flight than the first one," says Fuhr. "I made several circuits about the city and then brought the ship safely to the starting place."

The big gas bag which carries the ship, is made out of the finest silk and must be watched with the utmost care and attention. Inside the tent where it was being inflated Tuesday afternoon the least whiff of wind coming under the sides of the canvas tossed the bag back and forth with a violence that threatened to loosen the guy ropes.

"This is the breeziest day that I have struck since being out," Mr. Fuhr stated. "If this wind keeps up I won't be able to make an ascension. In fact I wouldn't go up in this wind for a million dollars."

If the weather is favorable, Mr. Fuhr on at least one of his ascensions will go probably 2,000 feet above the earth. He states, however, that 200 feet is a sufficient altitude to make a flight successful from the viewpoint of a spectator. Fuhr refers to a flight of 2,000 feet with the complacency of the average citizen talking of walking across the street.

The aeronaut states that it is impossible to map out an exact route to be taken before an ascension begins. The operator must be governed entirely by atmospheric conditions.
